

Governance and Democracy

About the Author

Mark Bevir is Professor of Political Science, University of California, Berkeley. He was born and raised in London, and received his doctorate from the University of Oxford. He is coeditor of the Journal of the Philosophy of History.

Mark's research interests include the philosophy of the human sciences, modern political thought and political philosophy. His historical interests include Anglophone, continental, and South Asian thought — especially radical, socialist, and critical theory of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. His philosophical interests include post foundational approaches to subjectivity, social inquiry, ethics, and democratic theory.

Books

The Logic of the History of Ideas, Cambridge, Cambridge University Press, 1999.

New Labour: A Critique, London, Routledge, 2005

Interpreting British Governance (with R.A.W. Rhodes), London, Routledge, 2003.

Governance Stories (with R.A.W. Rhodes), London, Routledge, 2006.

Edited Books

Critiques of Capital in Modern Britain and America: Transatlantic Exchanges 1800 to the Present Day (with Frank Trentmann), Basingstoke, Palgrave Macmillan, 2002.

Markets in Historical Contexts: Ideas and Politics in the Modern World (with Frank Trentmann), Cambridge, Cambridge University Press, 2004

Public Governance, 4 vols., London, Sage, 2007
Volume 1: Theories of Governance.
Volume 2: Public Sector Reform.
Volume 3: Public Policy.
Volume 4: Democratic Governance

Modern Political Science: Anglo-American Exchanges since 1880 (with Robert Adcock and Shannon Stimson), Princeton, Princeton University Press, 2007.

*Histories of Postmodernism (with Jill Hargis and Sara Rushing),
New York, Routledge, 2007.*

Reference Works

Encyclopedia of Governance, ed., 2 vols., Thousand Oaks, CA, Sage, 2007.